DISTRICT BOARD MEETS

PLAN COMING YEAR'S WORK AND ENDORSE MRS. COWLES FOR PRESIDENT

All Glendale clubwomen will be interested in the meeting of the Los Angeles district board Thursday afternoon, which was a very important gathering. Several general federation and state officers were present, as well as members of the Los Angeles district board and chairmen of departments. The meeting was held in the parlors of the Alexandria hotel and following the disposal of business the ladies were entertained at luncheon by Mrs. Herbert A. Cable, president of the Los Angeles district.

Forty women sat down at the exquisitely appointed table, place cards embossed with the federation seal and tied with the federation colors, purple and gold, marking covers for Mrs. L. B. Hogue of Ventura, vice-president at large of the state federation; Mrs. Josiah Evans Cowles, chairman of the peace committee of the general federation; Mrs. Wm. A. Gallentine, general and state federation chairman of civil service reform; Mrs. Frank A. Gibson, state chairman of industrial conditions; Mrs. R. J. Sterrett, state chairman of education; Mrs. D. F. Cate, state chairman of club extension and vice-president of the Los Angeles district; Mrs. F. D. Schoneman, state chairman of federation emblem; Mrs. R. C. Shipman, corresponding secretary of Los Angeles district; Mrs. L. W. Harmon, recording secretary of Los Angeles district; Mrs. W. E. Goodyear, treasurer of Los Angeles district; Mrs. Charles Robinson, auditor, and the following chairmen of departments of the Los Angeles district: Miss Edith L. Hotchkiss, education; Mrs. Theodore Macomber, literature; Mrs. Frank Stevens, peace; Mrs. C. H. Ritchie, civics; Mrs. Mattison B. Jones, political science; Dr. Maude Wilde, health; Mrs. Elizabeth Hull, country life; Mrs. Frank E. Wolfe, industrial and social; Harry J. Slater, legislation; Mrs. Adelaide Brewer, reciprocity and library information; Mrs. Ella Hamilton Durley, press; Mrs. R. W. Gleason, parliamentarian; Mrs. Frank Caldwell, historian; Mrs. E. T. Foster, necrology; Mrs. Dorlissa Clark, philanthropy; Mrs. J. E. Brown, endowment fund; Mrs. J. A. Mathews, member of reciprocity and information committee; Dr. V. W. Meyers, civil service reform, and other special guests as follows: Dr. Kate Waller Barrett of Washington, D. C.; Lavinia G. Graham of the Examiner, Dorothy B. Johnston of the Times and Mrs. J. W. Maus of Tucson, Ariz.

Mrs. Cowles was unanimously endorsed by the board as the California candidate for general federation president to be elected at the biennial next May. Mrs. Cowles has held the position of vice-president of the National federation for four years, and has filled other offices in the district and state federations. The women of Southern California feel that her chances of being elected are very good. She responded to this endorsement by a gracious speech.

It will be seen from the above that all department heads for the coming year have been appointed and the chairmen are all enthusiastic to go forward under the leadership of Mrs. Cable. Mrs. Mattison B. Jones of Glendale, past president of the Tuesday Afternoon club and chairman of political science, already has signed up the following clubs before whom she will lecture on political science: The Sierra Madre Woman's club, the Ebell club of Pomona, the Echo Park Mothers' club, the Woman's City club of Long Beach, the Woman's City club of Hermosa, the Civic Outlook club of Redondo Beach, the Eagle Rock Twentieth Century club and the San Pedro Woman's club. She has been secured to instruct a section of the Pasadena Shakespeare club once a month, and if accommodations can be secured she will instruct a section of the Glendale Tuesday Afternoon club once a month during the coming club year. If the heads of all other departments have as much work planned this will be a busy year for Southern California clubwomen.

THIEVES LOOT GARAGE

Patrolman E. A. Laurance this morning discovered that the garage at 222 Orange street, belonging to Sam Stoddard, had been broken into. The hinges had been taken off the two doors of the garage leading into the alley. The front door was open. The thief stole several articles, including a full kit of Ford tools. The officer examined the ground, which bore several footprints, but the marks had been walked over and were indistinguishable.

SCHOOL TRUSTEES

DISPOSE OF MUCH BUSINESS PREPARATORY TO OPENING OF SCHOOL

The regular meeting of the board of trustees of the Glendale school district was held in Superintendent White's office at the Third street school Thursday evening, Sept. 9. There were present J. W. Todd, L. E. Brockman and J. E. Eckles. Mr. Eckles, chairman of the board, presided, and J. N. Clark of the manual training department served as minute clerk. Superintendent R. D. White stated to the board that on account of his being absent on a vacation he had been unable to prepare the minutes of the preceding meeting, and that with the consent of the board he would postpone the reading of the minutes until the next meeting. The board granted his request.

C. E. Ringquest, Mrs. Helen I. Campbell and Mrs. C. E. Stanley, representing the Glendale Choral club, appeared before the board for the purpose of informing it that members of the club think a charge of $1.50 per night for the use of the auditorium will be burdensome for the club to pay, and Mr. Ringquest, acting as spokesman for the committee, explained to the board that the club is of great benefit to this community and the charge for the use of the schoolrooms should be made as little as possible. The board stated that $1.50 would not any more than cover the expense of light, heat and janitor service. Mr. Ringquest said that it would not be necessary to have any additional heat, that the room last year was usually too warm. In reconsidering the question the board decided that if the expense of heat is deducted the club might have the use of the auditorium for $1 per night. If heat is necessary, an additional charge will be made.

Superintendent White stated to the members of the board that a representative of the civic section of the Tuesday Afternoon club had made application to him for the use of the auditorium for the holding of public lectures on civic subjects. On motion the application was granted.

A representative of a lawn sprinkling device appeared before the board and explained the principle upon which the sprinkler operates. The explanation showed that the entire device is beneath the surface of the ground and the lawn may be cared for without the pipes being an obstruction. The company's bid for furnishing a sprinkler for the Central avenue school grounds is $184.63. Messrs. White and Brockman were appointed a committee to investigate as to the merits of that sprinkler, and others.

Superintendent White reported that six pupils from outside school districts have made application to attend the Third street school in Glendale. After considerable discussion a motion prevailed that a tuition fee of $3 per month be charged all foreign pupils.

Miss Campbell, a teacher last year in the Glendale school district, who has been spending her vacation in Massachusetts, writes the board that she cannot return for this year's work in the school on account of the illness of her mother, and asks for a year's leave of absence. The same was granted. The question of appointing a teacher to fill the vacancy was taken up. Several applications were read. Miss Ruth Pierce of Glendale was on motion elected to fill the position.

An application to conduct a chocolate candy stand near the Pacific avenue school was denied by the board.

Superintendent White advised the board to take no further action as to installing a cafeteria at the Third street school until such a time as conditions might be more favorable for one.

The announcement was made that the sewing room had been completed, but that sewing machines and extra tables are needed. Trustee Brockman and Miss Wooldridge, instructor in the sewing department, were appointed a committee to purchase sewing machines, and to Trustee Todd was delegated the power to procure tables.

Several applications were read for the work of sharpening tools used in the manual training department. After considerable discussion it was decided that there is sufficient repairing, building of fences and other work required to be done in connection with all of the school buildings and grounds to employ a carpenter at $2.50 per day for a month or longer, and the tool sharpening may be taken care of by this carpenter. Mr. Brockman was appointed a committee to engage a carpenter.

Superintendent White was instructed to get bids for the furnishing of

BY INLAND WATERS

MISS IDA M. WAITE, PRINCIPAL OF COLORADO BOULEVARD SCHOOL, TELLS OF ALASKA

Now that Europe has been closed to the tourist, the greater body of vacation traveling Americans have come to California if they dwelt in the East or Middle West, or have gone to Alaska if they lived in California. In this way they have gained much knowledge of their own country that they might otherwise have missed. Among those who chose the northern trip was Miss Ida M. Waite, principal of the Colorado boulevard school.

Miss Waite has been in the habit of taking extensive notes and pictures in the course of her vacation travels and making them the subject of instruction to her classes. This has proved so popular that she does not neglect to obtain many pictures in the course of her travels and to absorb as much lore on the journey concerning the places she may visit, in order to impart this information again.

Starting for Alaska this year, Miss Waite went to San Francisco and saw the fair. Thence she went by train to Seattle and saw much of the wonderful route through Oregon and Washington to the northern city, whence the boat starts for the trip along the southwest coast of Alaska. "The Jefferson," said Miss Waite, "is a commodious boat and is officered by men experienced in the handling of this trip. The smooth waters of the Inside Passage are as familiar to them as one's own garden, and where there is a rough spot, which is rare in that marvel of inland travel, they nurse their charges over it with absolute confidence.

"When we reached Ketchikan, which is the first Alaskan port we made, we saw some of the most beautiful scenery one can see anywhere. What impresses one at once in that wonderful country is the magnificence of the distances. There is a spaciousness and breadth of horizon all around one that gives one an inkling of the enormous distances that have to be traversed in that land of mystery and gold.

"At Ketchikan you can see the salmon as they rush to get up the streams. They have wonderful pictures of the leaping fish there. Nothing could be more beautiful than Ketchikan creek, a handsome body of water, which abounds in salmon and trout. The beautiful Dolly Varden trout is there and the rainbow trout with his handsome dash of colors, flashing like a prism through the roaring waters. Along this creek extends a trestle walk, with boards in the center, constituting a roadway. Along this one can walk and get a magnificent view of the wonders of the country. Here and there along the creek great trees have fallen across from side to side, forming natural bridges by which one can cross to picturesque spots. The whole creek is richly clothed with fine trees.

"A little way up the creek is the famous Loring falls and Iron canyon, with its immense boulders, deposited there by ancient glaciers. Then you come to Granite Basin, where into a calm and placid pool the waters come tumbling down from an immense height. Here, too, at Ketchikan, we caught an entrancing glimpse of attractively ugly totem poles, more of which we saw at Old Kasan, Sitka and Wrangell.

"At Wrangell we saw the famous garnet mines and got some of the garnets, which I brought home with me. These garnets are perfect specimens of crystallization. They are found there in abundance.

"At the famous Taku glacier the steamer stopped for two hours. In old days the captain used to fire off a small cannon that was kept for the purpose of making the glacier discharge part of its bed into the ocean. One day, however, the glacier came down in such an icefall as almost to swamp the steamer. In consequence the only jar that is attempted is given by the steam whistle, which when blown brings down quantities of the ice. Even the motion of the propeller produces a similar effect. When we were there this year the glacier needed no such encouragement. The ice was breaking off constantly and falling into the sea with the report of a 42-centimeter mortar.

"Inevitably we visited Douglas Island and Treadwell, the largest stamp mill in the world. We went to Juneau, the capital nowadays, instead of Sitka. There I saw the most wonderful baskets woven by the Indian women. At Skagway we saw many wonderful gardens and began to understand the agricultural possibilities of the country. All around the different points we visited we saw wild berries—red raspberries, black raspberries, salmon berries, red huckleberries, blueberries, wild currants and wild gooseberries.

"Up the White Pass and Yukon railway we went to Lake Bennett and saw the 'divide' between Canada and the United States, and the old trail that many an early prospector remembers when his back aches even to the present hour. In every possible way this was one of the most interesting trips I ever made. I wish I had had longer time to assimilate all its wonders. I wish I could have taken many trips up those tempting creeks and toward the gold camps in the back country. I wish I had had more time to learn of the old Russian rule, a remnant of which remains at Sitka in the Russian church there, and in the old fort. I would have liked to have taken a sailboat and winded in and out among those wonderful islands that adorn the coast. In short, I learned enough of Alaska to know that I have yet a great deal to learn about that wonderful land."

FASHIONS FOR FALL

TAFFETA TO BE A FALL FABRIC. FUR, LACE AND METALLIC ORNAMENTATIONS

The new fall blouses are rightly designated, for few and far between are the females who won't fall for them. Such exquisiteness is theirs as has never been before or behind, either, for they are much ornamented in the rear.

They are more bouffant, for one thing, and require divers lengths of diaphonous material to complete their sheer entirety. Georgette crepe, chiffon and crepe de chine continue to be the favorite mediums. Fur, lace and metallic embroideries are the favored garnishments.

One unique model of white crepe de chine is absolutely plain in front with a deep sailor collar of white silk plush in the back that is edged with a fringe of sassy little black and white ermine tails. The long sleeves are caught together at the cuff with a single tiny tail, and there you are—the tale of this blouse is ended.

A stunning blouse for an elderly woman (if there is any such thing) is of gray chiffon and black lace with a banding of skunk around the neck and down each side of the front to the bust line. The sleeves, which have a cap top of lace and full undersleeves of the chiffon, are cuffed in the fur. The lace is set in the back to form a point from the shoulders to the waist line and in front extends from the shoulders straight down each side of the fur bands.

Combinations of materials and of two colors are distinctly smart. Of those that seek their contrasting color in fur the white waists combined with skunk and the yellow with skunk are perhaps the loveliest.

Chiffon and velvet waists are also rich and effective. A Russian gray velvet waist with sleeves and yoke of the same shade of chiffon has for its sole adornment a choker collar of bear with a greenish gold metallic rose snuggling coyly on the left side.

A vivid striped velvet of gray, black, scarlet and yellow has a high collar of astrakhan and the long flaring bell sleeves are deeply banded with the same.

The colored waists of Jersey silk promise but a dubious following for fall, although the fur-trimmed sweaters of heavy wool or silk have been shaken off the summer girl's fair shoulders only to descend gracefully and fittingly upon those of Miss Autumn. They are sure to be decidedly smart well up into November for wear with tailor-made skirts of serge, velvet, and even taffeta. For, yes, taffeta is to be a fall fabric this year as well as a perennial spring one.

Quite the cleverest of the tailored coat suits are fashioned of this silk and combined with fur to give them a bit more stability.

QUIET HOME WEDDING

William L. Mills and Bonnie Grace Harper were married Wednesday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Atwater, 465 Gardena street, Tropico. Mr. Mills, who was born in New York state, has been for ten years in the employment of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company of Los Angeles. His bride is a native of Kentucky. The wedding was solemnized according to the manner of the Methodist Episcopal church, with a ring service. There were no witnesses but the immediate friends of the couple. After the wedding the newly wedded pair went to San Diego for a brief honeymoon. They may make their residence in Glendale.

SCHOOLS AS CENTERS OF SOCIAL LIFE

In ancient days, when education was beaten into unfortunate boys, and girls, too, sometimes, by virtue of a birchen rod or a good ash stave, there was little wonder that the boys and girls had no desire to see the inside of the school building any more after leaving it until forced to return to it next day. The idea of going back to school at night would have been greeted with shouts of disapproval.

Those days are fortunately gone forever. Gone is the idea that education is merely pumping into children so much knowledge without regard to its assimilation. Gone are the days when, the daily round of school tasks finished, scholar and teacher alike thought they had done what they ought to have done, went home and straightway forgot all about it.

During some years past the function of schools as social centers has been gradually growing up in the minds of the people. The school of the present day is as different from the school of the past as light is from darkness. Now much is made of every faculty of the human body and care is taken that the students are not overtasked nor wearied in their acquirement of learning. They no longer take classes without regard to whether or not they have time to eat the necessary midday meal. In earlier times that was considered a process of "hardening" that was essential as a part of the curriculum. Our parents went to schools in certain parts of the country and of the world where they had to leave home at 7 a. m. to get to school by 9; and where from 9 to 4, sometimes till 5 p. m., they studied without a break and without luncheon, and then got home by 6 or 7 p. m. if they were fortunate. In some of the more remote islands of the Hebrides, and in the Shetland isles, children walk ten miles to school barefooted in the depth of winter, when the snow is deep and the roads almost impassable, and then after a schoolday that lasts till 3 p. m. because it gets dark so soon in the winter there, they walk back again. If it were not for the charity of the teachers, who often prepare dinners for the children out of their own small means, they would walk home hungry also.

How the modern Glendale scholar would scorn such a school life; driving comfortably to school in auto bus or street car without expense to himself or herself; with a comfortable school fitted with every convenience; a gymnasium, a baseball field, a football and basketball field; bleachers; athletic ground and track; a school orchestra, school plays, dances and entertainments of every kind; books up-to-date, maps in abundance, and everything that can minister to the training of the mind.

With all this, too, the students have the use of the fine school auditoriums and cooking schools and housekeeping bungalows, and many other conveniences. They can bring their parents and friends to those centers of light and pleasure, where knowledge is absorbed rather than drilled into the scholars. Such a school community should be and is a center from which is emanating a profound influence. The students have self-government and learn to be obedient to law—their own law—which is just what they have to be in the great world that awaits them. They learn, too, those vocational studies that fit them to a great extent for the work of life. In every way the school is becoming a center of social life with which society can in no way dispense, and which many wonder it has ever been able to do without.

PSYCHOLOGICAL EFFECT OF THE AUTOMOBILE

It is related of an old negro "mammy" that remonstrating with an automobilist on his reckless driving, she was asked to jump into the vehicle and have a ride. Obeying, Aunt Dinah immediately responded to the exhilarating effects of the machine as it rushed through the atmosphere. A negro loafer stood in the way of the machine. Seeing the driver swerve his machine to one side, Aunt Dinah cried out: "Nevah mind him, sah; drive over the no-account niggah!" So great may be the transformation that the auto atmosphere can create in a human being.

Look at any street where you have opportunity to observe the different machines and their different drivers. On each the machine seems to produce varying effect. In one caution is superinduced. You can see the quiet, absorbed air of the driver as he mentally takes note of every object in his path; watches the street corners and the crossways; scans the road for unwary passengers or reckless drivers, and generally devotes his mind to his work with a sense of duty that is overwhelming.

Look again! There is another style of driver—a young lad, perhaps. He has two or three young women with him. They all share the excitement of the whirl. Their eyes flash. Their minds are beyond their control. They whizz by the various objects in the way; cut the corners; startle the pedestrians, many of whom they just miss hitting, and generally behave themselves as though they were what the French call "tete monte," or the Scotch call "fey." These are they who will some day, sooner or later, figure in the "horrible accident" news article. Their sport will be turned into mourning, and if their lives should happen to be spared they are likely to go lame the rest of their days.

Others there are who drive with a grace, ease and perfect confidence that tell of the well-balanced mind, the cool reason and the level head. It is admirable to see such a driver, sitting back in his or her machine, apparently not much concerned with the difficulties and dangers of the road, but steering with consummate ease through them all, as though the way were perfectly clear. It is a pleasure to watch such a driver. You can easily know that neither through his own fault nor that of any other will he or she ever get into an accident. Such are the fortunate individuals of the auto world. They can tell you of their performances with machines they have had for years, carefully nursing them; overhauling their engines every night; oiling, testing, replacing a part here and there as it may seem to be getting worn out, and making a record for perfect freedom from accidents, that some of their neighbors will call "luck," but which you may know is the result of care and forethought.

As long as there are automobiles there will be accidents. It is not to be expected that so powerful a machine can be put into the hands of individuals inexperienced in driving without more or less disastrous results. It would never be imagined for a moment that the inexperienced individual should be intrusted with the driving of a railway train; yet a high-powered auto is even more difficult to drive, either on a well-traveled road or in a crowded city.

As long as men and women possess the varied characters they now possess, so long will this fascinating modern means of transportation produce different effects upon them, and so long will there be accidents to report.

PURE FOOD AND HEALTH

Dr. Wilbur A. Sawyer, director of the state hygienic laboratory and lecturer in preventive medicine in the University of California, has now been made secretary of the state board of health. Here are some of the state's great activities for keeping people well which are now committed to his direction and care:

A food and drug laboratory at the university to protect the public from foods which masquerade as something they really are not, and from patent medicines which contain dangerous or habit-forming drugs.

A tuberculosis bureau to co-operate with the great fight to prevent tuberculosis, now responsible for one-fourth of all the deaths in California, and yet a disease which is largely preventable and in most instances curable.

A bureau of vital statistics, through which the community can learn where warfare is most needed in the eternal fight against preventable disease.

A bureau of sanitary engineering at the university, to help every community in California to get clean water to drink and to be protected against bad methods of sewage disposal by neighboring communities.

A bureau for the registration of nurses to help toward establishing good standards for the nursing profession.

The state hygienic laboratory at the university, devoted to fighting epidemics. During the five years Dr. Sawyer has been at the head of that laboratory it has been of much value to the community through the discoveries he has made there, such as the fact that even though food has been cooked, it may even then convey typhoid from a typhoid carrier; or the fact that infantile paralysis is not transmitted by the bite of the biting fly, but may be spread just as are diphtheria or typhoid, by human carriers. Among other phases of the work of the state hygienic laboratory which he has built up have been the making and distribution of Pasteur virus to protect children and others who have been bitten by mad dogs, the making of serums with which to vaccinate people against typhoid, and the establishment of a department for Wassermann and other tests for disease.

DONKEY LOSES EARS

A singular result of naval marksmanship is described in a story from Tehesmeh, where the only "casualty" caused by the bombardment by a British warship was the ears of the ass of Halil Effendi, Turkish collector of customs.

A shell shaved off the ears of Effendi's donkey cleaner than a knife could have done the deed. Consequently, times being slack and Effendi's animal being the sight of the town, Effendi took advantage of the wonderful shot to charge admission to see the donkey.

WAR ON RECKLESS DRIVING

There has been considerable relaxation recently of the stringent supervision of auto driving within the city limits. That laxity may be accounted for by the fact that the state's attorney-general decided that fines levied for such offenses in the cities must go to the county fund. It is believed that auto drivers, knowing of this, have deliberately violated the city regulations concerning reckless driving, turning in the middle of blocks and other rules devised to protect the lives of citizens.

Chief Herald says that is all to be changed now. Reckless driving is being checked daily and already there have been several convictions for this offense, attended with heavy fines. The chief wants it made plain that no violation of the ordinance relating to reckless driving will be tolerated, and warns all drivers of autos that open mufflers and other neglects of similar character will be promptly dealt with.

But is not this nation in greater need, right now, of merchant ships than of more battleships?

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MEETINGS

The editor of the Evening News, after almost three years' enrollment as a member of the chamber, has learned that the personnel of the membership varies according to conditions. The majority of the members who were present at every meeting in 1913 took but little interest in the affairs of the chamber in 1914, and now in 1915 we observe that those in attendance give but little attention to the doings of the chamber in 1913 and 1914.

PETER BRYANT WANTED

In a letter to Chief of Police Herald Mrs. Marie Bryant, 9023 South Broadway, St. Louis, Mo., says that she is anxious that Peter Bryant, who is supposed to be living in Glendale or its vicinity, should know that his son, John W. Bryant, is very sick in the city hospital of St. Louis. It is believed that he is dying, and his wife, who writes the letter to the chief, states that she has no means of burying him, as he has neither money nor insurance. Young Bryant was a shoemaker. His father, Peter Bryant, used to live in Boston, Mass. Chief Herald will be glad to receive any information that will lead to the finding of Peter Bryant, and will forward it to Mrs. Marie Bryant.

UNTHANKFUL PEOPLE

It is to be regretted that it is the disposition of a few people to be unthankful for all favors extended. There have been instances wherein the Evening News has with pleasure spent both time and money in giving certain persons favorable publicity, and in turn the paper has been denounced by the persons thus favored, on account of the slightest error or omission.

The Bank of Glendale makes no loans to any of its officers or directors. Disinterestedness in those having care of your money is thus assured.

DO US A FAVOR

All person owing the Evening News for "want ads" will confer a favor by paying at the office. It is impossible to employ a collector to make these small collections without the expense being more than the money collected.

DESTRUCTION OF WEEDS

Citizens of Glendale are busy raking up and burning weeds. The work is not a task but a pleasure on the part of property owners who are engaged at this work. The new state law giving city officials the power to assess the expense of clearing weeds from lots works like a charm. It causes property owners to work together. In the instance of lots being owned by several persons in an unimproved block, it seems almost useless for one owner to clear weeds from his lot when the other owners do not do the same. A law that requires all lots to be cleaned assures every property owner that the entire block in which his property is located will have a tidy appearance.

Trying to drown a gopher is about as effective as trying to eat soup with a fork or carry water in a sieve.

PUBLIC HEALTH NURSE

A Canadian physician, Dr. C. J. Hastings of Toronto, suggested something new and interesting to the American Public Health association meeting at Rochester, N. Y. He suggested a public health nurse, who would earn her salary as Chinese physicians earn theirs, by keeping the public well.

"The qualifications of a public health nurse," he said, "in addition to her training in a recognized school for the training of nurses, require that she must have a special training as a tuberculosis nurse, as a child-welfare nurse, as a school nurse; a training in hygiene and sanitation; a training in social service, which will equip her to be an efficient social service agent; and, in fact, she must be the home-maker, caring for the race from the prenatal state until it passes on to the next cycle of existence. Heretofore children have been neglected until they enter school—before which, ofttimes, irreparable damage has been done.

"The knowledge of the sources of disease and the various ways and means by which it is transmitted from one person to another, has for years, for the most part, remained within the precincts of the univeritsy and laboratory. This knowledge must be democratized or translated into language that can be assimilated by the housewife in the humblest home and by the man on the street. This can undoubtedly best be accomplished by the public health nurse."

Death Rates Useless

That present statistics on death rates are meaningless and useless is the declaration of Dr. E. C. Levy of Richmond, Va. No distinction as to conditions are made, he says, nor as to preventable and non-preventable diseases. The work done by a good health officer, in his opinion, finds no reflection in such statistics.

"Vital statisticians," says Levy, "have been satisfied to publish meaningless figures and force the health officer to get out of the resulting difficulties as best he might. It is time we call on them to deliver the goods."

Dr. John W. Trask of the United States public health service gives it as his belief that the high death rate among colored people is not inherent in the colored race, and that the situation can be remedied in this country.

The only way to beat the housefly's game, according to Dr. L. M. McCormick of Asheville, N. C., is to play it the house-fly's way, which is characterized chiefly by persistence. None of the fly-killing systems will serve of themselves, he said. Cities must clean up and keep clean.

UNITED STATES' REBUKE TO AUSTRIA

Every true American will rejoice to learn that the administration at Washington has effectively rebuked the pernicious activity of the Austrian ambassador, who coolly plotted with an attache of the German embassy at Washington to cripple American munitions factories, by requesting his government to recall him. That was the least that could be done to vindicate the dignity of this country and to assert its determination to permit no foreign interference with the administration of its internal affairs.

Konstantin Dumba will go back to Austria a madder and perhaps not a wiser man; but he will at least have learned that the United States will tolerate no such insolent activity in its midst by those who are the guests of the nation. Dumba and those in Austria who, he says, instigated him to this piece of vulgar and sinister plotting are in the position of a guest in a private house who should interfere with his host's servants and recommend them to leave. In fact, they are even more reprehensible, and are only equaled in moral obliquity by the American who taritorously carried their dispatches for them.

ELIMINATION OF LAND

By proclamation dated Aug. 31, 1915, President Wilson has eliminated 749,730 acres from the Cleveland National forest, California. The eliminated lands are rolling rather than mountainous in character, and covered mainly with chaparral. They extend along practically the entire length of the forest. The purpose of the president's action is to exclude from the forest boundaries the areas which are heavily alienated and are also of least value for forest purposes. Such concentration of the remaining forest lands will promote efficiency of administration and reduce expenses of maintenance to the government.

One of the main reasons for the establishment of the Cleveland forest was the protection of the mountain watersheds from which the water supply of the city of San Diego is derived. In making this large elimination the needs of San Diego have been carefully kept in mind, and all areas of mountainous government land which are of importance to the San Diego water supply have been retained within the forest.

ADMISSION DAY AT FAIR

SAN DIEGO, Sept. 10.—Admission Day, the sixty-fifth anniversary of the admission of California to statehood in the United States, was memorably celebrated Thursday at the San Diego Exposition by crowds representing practically every community in Southern California, exposition visitors, and the thousands of former residents of other states now members of 39 state societies in San Diego.

Pageantry formed the more spectacular features of the celebration, a long line of floats depicting the eras of the succession of Spanish, Mexican and American control, the coming of the Franciscans and their establishment of the famous missions, the day of the ox teams and stage coaches, the discovery of gold and the later-day prosperity.

The orders of Natives Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West and the Pioneer Historical society of San Diego county were chiefly instrumental in designing the pageant, while many persons, companies and organizations contributed historic paraphernalia for the mammoth parade.

CITY COUNCIL TONIGHT

When the city council met Thursday night for the purpose of considering the annexation of the pumping plant strip, it was discovered that the day being a legal holiday, no meeting was possible. The meeting was postponed till Friday night.

A TRAGEDY

It was just at sunset. The quiet of a country door-yard was suddenly broken by the piercing cries of two robins which flew about a young maple tree in the wildest excitement. A hurried visit to the tree told the story. Down the tree came a cat, one young fledgling in its mouth, while the others had been pushed out of the nest, some fallen to the ground only able to hop a few feet, one clinging to a branch, and all half frightened out of their lives. They were gathered up and put back into the nest while the parent birds flew screaming around the tree almost brushing with their wings the hands that were trying to restore the nestlings to the empty nest. It was useless. Twice, three times they fluttered to the ground and were replaced in the nest, but the great disaster had so overturned all they knew of life that they would not stay in the old familiar home.

The cat was caught with the dead bird in its mouth, punished, and shut up for the night, in the hope the deed would not be repeated (for many of them can be taught not to molest birds), and the fledlings finally persuaded to sit upon a branch well up in the tree. There they were left in the darkness, the father and mother still manifesting every sign of distress. In the morning all were gone. What became of them? Did they flutter again to the ground and did some other foe find them What of the parents?

The days of mating, the building of the nest, the patient brooding of the eggs, the innumerable journeys to and fro through the weeks when food had to be provided for all the hungry mouths—all to end in such a sad disaster. How like the story of many a human home! What is to be said in the face of these overwhelming calamities that so often fall upon the lives of men and animals? Who can answer the question?—Our Dumb Animals.

GARDENING WITHIN ARCTIC

That crop production may be practiced north of the Arctic circle is one of the interesting facts brought out by a report on a reconnoissance soil survey in Alaska soon to be issued. This embodies the results of a study of the soils of a vast area in Alaska by experts of the bureau of soils, made for the purpose of determining the possibilities of agricultural development.

It was found that gardening is carried on and grass thrives in Alaska up to and north of the Arctic circle. In addition it is shown that the climate and soils of Finland are very similar to those of Alaska, the latitude of the two regions being practically identical. In Finland a number of crops are grown at a considerable distance north of the Arctic circle. Barley, for example, is generally grown as far north as 68 degrees 30 minutes, or two degrees north of the circle. Almost 7,000,000 acres in Finland were under cultivation and in improved meadow in 1901. That country has a population of 3,140,100 (reported in 1911), and about 85 per cent of this number live outside the cities. Crop production, stock raising and dairying are important industries.

This comparison with Finland and another with parts of Siberia are given to demonstrate the possibility of agricultural development in Alaska.

NOTED ENGLISH WOMAN COMING

Many Glendale people who are connected with the Los Angeles Single Tax league are awaiting with interest the arrival of Mrs. Mary Fels in that city next Sunday. Mrs. Fels is the widow of the late Joseph Fels, well-known English manufacturer and economist.

Immensely wealthy and with access to the highest circles of Continental Europe, Mrs. Fels has dedicated her life to the management of her business interests and to the work which her husband so generously began, the abolition of involuntary poverty. She is devoting a large part of her fortune to the continuing of the Fels Fund commission, which was established by her husband to double all money paid in to the land reform movement.

Mrs. Fels will speak twice a day while in Los Angeles, and on Wednesday evening, Sept. 15, will address an open meeting at Blanchard hall, that city. Many Glendale people will be asked to meet this distinguished visitor at various social functions during her stay in the Southland, among these being Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Webb of Lomita avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Robinson of Maryland avenue.

LA CANADA

Miss Lavina Crane of Los Angeles has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Dutour for the past week. Miss Crane is only about nine years old, and through a little coaching from her mother shows a remarkable talent for elocution.

Miss Alice McCoy of Glendale was the guest of Miss Lulu Green last Wednesday and Thursday.

Miss Katherine Hegeman and Miss Reda Van Arscane of North Pasadena spent one day this week tramping into the mountains near Switzer's.

Treats over a horseshoe game were paid up Thursday night. Mr. Edwin Cooper and Wilbur Seright were the participants in this game, which took place last week at Switzer's Camp. About six young people who were all sure their man would win took part in the fulfillment of the wager at the Pig-'n-Whistle, Los Angeles, Thursday night.

Mrs. Nickolson entertained her two nieces from Los Angeles Monday.

Monday being a holiday a number of the young folks attended the tennis tournament and picnic held on the Eagle Rick court on Fairmont avenue.

Mr. B. D. Jackson, who has been running the jitney bus between here and Montrose and Pasadena, stated that when the state highway was completed as far as La Crescenta he would increase his route to the La Crescenta store.

The regular quarterly meeting of the stockholders of the Littlelanders store was held at the store building Tuesday evening. President John Steen called the meeting to order and in the absence of Secretary Hubbard, P. Blake, officiated. The financial report showed that during the quarter ending Sept. 1, the gross sales amounted to about $3600 and the goods purchased totaled about $3000, and that there had been a net gain of approximately $150. It was stated that about $400 of the old bills owed to the store were still outstanding. The plan of the directors to erect an addition to the store to be used as a meat market, at a cost of about $300 was endorsed by a rising vote. The question of changing the by-laws so as to permit the giving of credit was discussed but no quorum was present, any positive action that might be taken would have been illegal. The talk was informal but decidedly favorable to some such policy.

One may be a patriot without forever clamoring for the opportunity to seize a gun and sally forth to shoot somebody, in warfare.
